Your privacy

BreastScreen SA maintains high accreditation standards that are needed to achieve our aim of reducing deaths from breast cancer through early detection. Several of these accreditation standards relate to the privacy of our clients.

What information does BreastScreen SA need and why?

BreastScreen SA has been granted permission to obtain information (names, addresses, dates of birth, email addresses and phone numbers) from both Medicare and the Electoral Roll to identify South Australian women aged 50 and older. This information allows us to invite eligible women to make an appointment for a free breast screen.

Information is collected from you (our client) when you attend for screening, allowing us to correctly identify you and your records.

Further information collected from you includes:

- > your family history of breast cancer – this allows us to recommend whether you should be screened annually or 2-yearly
- > any current breast symptoms and previous breast problems you may have – this enables us to make recommendations to your doctor about future management after your breast screen
- > any investigations and treatment following your breast screen – this information is collected, with your consent, from external health providers to ensure you receive the most appropriate care
- > any investigations and treatment for breast cancer that is diagnosed between your regular breast screens – this information is collected from the SA Cancer Registry and allows us to monitor the effectiveness of our service.

If you do not provide us with all the relevant information about yourself, we may not be able to provide you with the best advice about your need for further investigations and future screening.

If you do not sign the BreastScreen SA Information and Consent for Screening form, we are unable screen you.

How is my information used?

We use your personal details to contact you when your breast screen is due and to inform you of your results.

Your nominated general practitioner (GP) or treating doctors will also be contacted to ensure you receive the most appropriate care.

Data is analysed so we can monitor the quality of our service, and plan for future needs.

How is my information stored?

Your information is stored securely within an electronic database. Privacy and confidentiality is strictly maintained, according to the Health Act 2008 (sec 93) and Mental Health Act 2009 (sec 106).

Who has access to my information and why?

BreastScreen SA staff have access to information at the level that is required for them to perform their duties and provide the best possible breast screening service for you.

Your nominated doctor is provided with the results of your screening visit if you have provided us with their name and given your signed consent.

Your nominated doctor and treating specialist(s) are provided with information about you if you need investigation or treatment for breast cancer.

The SA Cancer Registry is notified of all cases of breast cancer. This is required by law.

Data is used to collect statistics for quality assurance and for monitoring and evaluation of the BreastScreen SA program. Reports produced from this data may be provided to BreastScreen Australia and government health departments.

Information may be used for ethically approved research purposes. It is not possible to identify individuals from these published reports in any way.

Accessing your personal records

When you visit one of our screening or assessment clinics, we keep a record of your visit and the results of your mammogram and/or assessment procedures. This helps to make sure that staff can communicate with each other and with your nominated GP or specialist to provide you with the best care possible.

Can I get a copy of my records?

There are times when you might want to have copies of your records for your own information. The Freedom of Information (FOI) Act generally gives you the right to access and obtain copies of your personal records. You can request your records personally and if you believe that your records are incorrect, out-of-date or misleading, you can ask for your records to be amended.

To find out more about making a FOI application and the fees and charges that apply, or to obtain an application form, you can visit the State Records website at www.archives.sa.gov.au or phone them on 08 8204 8791.
